PENPOL NEWSLETTER

25TH SEPTEMBER 2026

Sunday evening is the new Friday night... when it comes to the Newsletter at least!

The back-to-school lurgy hit hard last week amongst the staff team and, whilst ensuring this didn't impact the safety and quality of provision on offer to your children, it did have an impact on the production of the Newsletter!

That being said, it was, as always, a wonderfully busy week here at Penpol. We celebrated Maths Week, with the brief of making maths even more fun, with a particular focus on fluency.

As you made your way around school, you were greeted with the rolling of dice, the shuffling of cards and plenty of shouts of "BINGO!" Most of the school focused their maths learning on Place Value – a personal favourite of mine, largely due to the huge variety of games and activities available to revisit previous learning whilst also consolidating new concepts.

It was fantastic to see children enjoying maths in such a practical, active and engaging way, with plenty of opportunities to talk, play, think and, most importantly, develop their mathematical fluency.

This reminder seems to be a constant, but please do bear with us with the parking situation around school at drop-off and pick-up.

We are, obviously, still missing a Crossing Patrol person (if you are interested in the role, please do search for it online!) and we appreciate that this can make the start and end of the school day a little more challenging.

However, we do have neighbours with accessibility difficulties, and we really need everyone to be considerate of their needs. Please do not park on pavements or across dropped kerbs, as this can prevent people who rely on these access points from being able to safely get around their own neighbourhood.

We know that parking around school can be frustrating, but a little patience, consideration and good manners go a long way in helping to keep the area safe and accessible for everyone. Thank you for your continued support.
